

Eric Beingessner

Hoisting Engineer—Mobile Crane Operator 1
IUOE Local 793
Puslinch, Ontario

Eric Beingessner is a journeyperson and mobile crane operator at Mammoet in Puslinch, Ontario. He recently completed his 339—Hoisting Engineer—Mobile Crane Operator 1 Apprenticeship Program at the Operating Engineer’s Training Institute of Ontario (OETIO), the training affiliate of the International Union of Operating Engineers (IUOE) Local 793. Prior to becoming involved in the mobile crane industry, he was employed as a health and safety specialist at a heavy equipment manufacturing company. There, he assisted with the development, implementation and maintenance of a variety of EHS policies and programs. He has additional hands-on work experience in the metal processing, automobile manufacturing and construction industries. Eric has a bachelor of science (B.Sc) degree in honours health studies from the University of Waterloo, as well as a diploma in occupational health and safety management (Dip.OHSM) from Western University.